Alex Film Society presents the 8th annual VAUDEVILLE EXTRAVAGANZA!
September 15, 2007, 8 pm. Alex Theatre, Glendale

Each year, in the spirit of Vaudeville, and to honor the early history of the Alex Theatre, we include a film portion as part of our program. For our 8th annual event, we feature two shorts by the most enduring comedy teams in film history: Laurel and Hardy and The Three Stooges®. These films have a common theme as well, using a huge flight of stairs as an obstacle for our heroes. Stan and Ollie's 1932 short, The Music Box, is actually a remake of "Hats Off" a lost silent they did in 1927. Here the boys have to move a piano up a huge flight of stairs (in the original it was a washing machine). Nearly ten years later, in An Ache in Every Stake, Larry, Moe and Curly seem to have found the same stairs but this time it is a block of ice that has to be carried. In both cases, as they say in show business, "comedy ensues!"

The Music Box, done to fulfill a contractual obligation to Hal Roach Studios, was the only Laurel and Hardy film ever to receive an Academy Award® (Best Short Subject, 1932) and An Ache in Every Stake is considered one of the very best of the Stooges' nearly 190 shorts made for Columbia Pictures between 1933 and 1958.

Many folks think the same set of stairs was used for both films. In fact, they are different stairways, but both are in Silverlake, about two miles apart. Laurel and Hardy's nemesis is between 923 and 935 Vendome Street. The Stooges stairway is between 2257 and 2258 Fair Oak Terrace.
